

Music-animated body

Jakub Ryszard Matyja

Abstract

It seems that a common denominator for minimal Cartesianism and enactivism would be based on the statement which appears also in research on music, namely that: we do not perceive exclusively with our brains. Our brains are always situated in our bodies, which, in turn, are always situated within a (physical and social) environment.