

SCHEDULE: Between Computation and Coordination Distributed perspectives on language, cognition and text-based artefacts
Thursday, 23 May 2019		Room
10.00 – 11.30	Stephen J. Cowley, The natural tung, symbolizations and what computation does	161
Coffee brake
11.45 – 12.30	Marcin Miłkowski, Commentary: Wide Cognition, Mechanisms, and Distributed Computation	161
Lunch break
14.15 – 15.15	Simone Pinna, On the contrast between computationalism and non-representational approaches to cognition: model types vs styles of explanation	161
Coffee brake
15.30 – 16.30	Aleksandra Kołtun, Writing as socio-material practice – a case study	161
Friday, 24 May 2019
9.00 – 10.00	Davide Secchi, Cognition in Organizations: An Agent-Based Computational Perspective	161
10.00 – 11.00	Regina Fabry, Telling Stories Across Space and Time. The Enculturated Predictive Processing Account of Distributed Narrative Practices	161
Coffee brake
11.15 – 12.15	Marcin Trybulec, From artefact-centered to practice-oriented accounts of external symbolizations	161
Closing		